STATE ORNITHOLOGIST GOING TO MANITOBA With Governmest Expedition-Plans to Domesticate Game Birds.

The departure of State Ornithologist Herbert K. Job of West Haven join a government expedition to Manitoba in the interests of wild fowl propagation, calls attention to the work now going on in this state to domesticate a number of species of game birds. Mr. Job last summer went to the wilds of Manitoba, and under a license given him by the Canadian government, collected eggs of various species of ducks, brant, swan and geese which migrate to those regions in the breeding season, hatched them in a home made incubator and brought back the young birds. A num-ber of wealthy men financed the trip and since then many kinds of wild fowl have been kept at the Connecticut college at Storrs, at Norfolk on a game preserve there and at several preserves in Westchester county, N. It is stated that an experiment made the past year in a preserve in Westchester county netted $2,000 profit in the raising of the wood duck and supplying it to the New York markets. The present expedition is better equipped than any previous one and works under a permit from the Canadian government.

FOR FISH AND GAME. An Important Measure Passed by the Senate.

The state senate did a very unusual piece of legislating for the fish and game interests of the state late last week. Fishermen, hunters, naturalists, lovers of wild life and those who be-lieve in a large commercial future for Waterbury and Hartford districts. The greatly interested in the news of the and game board bill. This went through unanimously and with applause.

The bill makes a board representing every county in the state and composed of men who serve without pay; places under them a single superin tendent of fisheries and game, clothed with full power, allowed to choose his own county and local officers, and responsible to the board of fisheries and game for the execution of the laws and the upbuilding of the fish and game resources of Connecticut. The bill combines the advantages of an advisory board representing all the state and having the power of appointment and removal for cause, with the advantage of a single-headed respon-sibility for the actual administration of the department. Senator F. S. Johnson, in introduc-ing the bill as a substitute for a pending measure, said that its enactment would be the greatest forward step in the history of the handling of the fish and game interests of the state. "For once," he said, "we have a measure proposes a businesslike plan of handling the department, together with the intelligent supervision of a body of men who serve without pay and represent all the sections of the state, in the spirit simply of good citizen-

TALK ON LACE WORK

BEFORE ART SCHOOL Given by Miss Mary Patterson of Providence in Course on Art Needle-

Miss Mary Patterson of Providence, ho gave such an instructive and entertaining talk on embroideries to the Norwich Art school last month, continued the subject of art needlework with an excellent talk on laces given at the Slater Memorial on Tuesday afternoon. Lace work grew out of embroidery. This open work on linen was extensively made in the Greek islands and its general name was cut work. Reticella was the next step and differs from cutwork in having most of the linen cut away and then filling in the spaces with geometrical designs. It was called Greek lace by the English, who found it in the Ionian islands, but its origin was Italian as much as Greek. Printo in Aria was done without any linen border and was the beginning of real lace. Netted lace is another very old form and had its origin in the old drawn work in which the threads were not cut, simply drawn away There are two principal squares. kinds of lace, pillow and point. early times lace was used only in the churches; from the 6th to the 12th centuries it was confined exclusively to this purpose.

Venetian needle point consists entirely of buttonhole stitches. The three chief varieties are rose point, coralline and grounded Vene-tian. From Italy lace was introduced into France, where it was renamed point de France by order of the king. The two distinctly French laces are point D'Alencon and point D'Argentan. The French used many floral designs. The Flemish laces are mostly pillow laces, of which they were the inventors. The only pillow lace of French make is the Valenciennes which differs from other pillow laces in being made all in one piece. English Laces Not Original. England has no original lace work.
